On the basis of field observations, it is believed that the use of mercantile credit in the Hope-Magnolia district has declined as much if not more than in any other cotton district of the state.—Bulletin No. 237, University Agricultural Experiment Station.

American Sunday Is A Civil Event

Dr. Bowen, Baptist Pastor Speaks on Law Enforcement

State Law Recognizes Civil, Not Religious, Meaning of Day

MORAL LAW IS REAL

Pastor Asks What Is True Attitude of Americans Toward Sabbath

The Sabbath as a civil institution guaranteeing men a six-day working week, was discussed by Dr. W. A. Bowen, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the morning service last Sunday.

The pastor had as guests of the church the editor of The Star, Alex. H. Washburn, and the manager of the Saenger theatre, Jack Baves. In his letter of invitation to The Star, Dr. Bowen wrote:

"Your recent editorials and news items indicate an interesting and an activity on your part in this problem (Sunday observance). I am, therefore, sending you this personal invitation to be present and hear the discussion next Sunday morning."

Foundation of Nation
His sermon Sunday morning was based on a text from Psalms 11:3: "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?"

"The security and stability of a building is determined largely by the foundation upon which it rests," Dr. Bowen said. "Every civilization rests upon and is supported by certain institutions, ideals and principles as foundations. Some of them are: The law, the home, the school, the church, the Sabbath."

"God, the Creator, instituted the Sabbath. It is the second oldest institution recorded in the Bible, the home and marriage being first. The law, as given by Moses, simply emphasized the importance of a proper observance of an institution already in existence."

"The Divine purposes were twofold—needed physical rest for man, and his spiritual welfare. Man needs time for the renewing of his (Continued on Page Six)

Hope Man Is Held for Trial by U. S.

William C. Shelton Arraigned by Federal Banking Department

William C. Shelton, former assistant cashier of the Citizens National Bank of this city, was bound over to the federal grand jury at Texarkana late Saturday for the alleged misappropriation of $1,000. Shelton waived hearing when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner J. Warren Stevens and was held in bond of $2,500.

Officials of the bank, said that restitution had been made for the alleged shortage, but the federal banking department which supervises national banks brought the prosecution. Shelton resigned from the bank October 20, 1928.

Supreme Court In Session Again

Meets After Two Months Vacation To Resume Duties

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 16. (AP)—The supreme court held its first session today after a two months summer vacation, advancing on the docket two cases attacking the validity of acts of the last legislature. Nine criminal and five civil cases were submitted. No opinions were handed down.

One of the cases advanced was that of Conn Grable against the state highway commission which he claimed $11,000 against the Woodruff-Prairie road improvement district No. 6. The money was sought under an act which provided the highway commission would assume the indebtedness of improvement districts formed prior to the passage of the Martineau act.

Fights Dismissal As Schoolma'am

"Young, reckless, thoughtless, don't care, flatter myself, thinking of everything except the serious side of life"—such was the description of pretty Mildred Doyle, 23, above given to the board of education by the Parent-Teachers' Association of Vestal, Tenn., in asking her dismissal as principal of a county high school. She is fighting the charges.

State Commander of Legion Coming

Will Be Guest of Local Post At Wednesday Night Party

Bob Gordon, of Dermott, State Commander of the American Legion, will be a guest of the post here next Wednesday night at a "chow line" party to be held at the Armory. This information was contained in a message to Barney Hamm, local post commander, received today.

Plans practically completed now guarantee the party will be the event of the season, so far as the post is concerned, for the committee in charge is arranging to not only put on a feed but to add a lot of trimmings for the benefit of the fellows in attendance.

One thing the gathering will do will be to endorse the candidacy of an Arkansas man for National Commander and devise some means whereby they may advance his candidacy.

Election of officers will be another question coming up, but the general opinion seems to be at the present time having been doing a pretty good job and they will likely be ordered to stay on the job another year.

Penny Matching Is Not Always Harmless Sport

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 16. W. W. Knapp, of Bridgeport, Conn., came to witness the night illumination of Niagara Falls, and because he came too early and struck up a casual acquaintance with a stranger he is minus $160.

Knapp was waiting for the spectacle to begin when a stranger appeared to him sporting himself in order to while away the time. The stranger suggested the old and inexpensive pastime of matching pennies. Knapp readily assented but found his acquaintance could win more at matching pennies than more people do in high-stake poker sessions.

Schooley and Bowden Are 'Frosh' Victims; and How

Edward Schooley and J. T. Bowden, Jr., both entering Ouachita as first-year men, are now realizing some of the pangs and pains of ambition, according to private notes received by friends here.

For they have been taken in hand by upper classmen and propitiously lured for presuming to walk in the wake of the mighty and for failing to pay proper respect for sophomore cap and gown.

"In fact," as J. T. laments, "we've had a plenty—but there's more in sight! If we do it, it's wrong and we get our attention called to it. If we don't—then, oh, how we wish we had!"

But they report they like it and that they, as well as the many other Hope youngsters in school at Arkadelphia, are getting set for a busy school term.

Decline Shown In School Census for Year Is Announced

Apportionment of Funds To Be Less Than Last School Year.

HEMPSTEAD LOSES

County Census Shows 427 Fewer Students Than Last Term.

The 1929 school enumeration, as announced by the State Department of Education Saturday shows there are 617,724 children of school age in Arkansas. Last year the enumeration showed 621,232, or 3,508 more than this year.

C. M. Hirst, state superintendent of public instruction, said the decrease in enumeration this year resulted largely from strict methods employed by the department in checking figures submitted by county boards to eliminate errors and duplications.

Apportionment of the common school fund will be based on the 1929 enumeration when the state Board of Education meets Tuesday to make the apportionment.

It is probably that the apportionment will be slightly less than it was last year, when the Fall apportionment was $3.98 per capita. A supplemental apportionment last March of $1.12 per capita brought the total for the school year, to $5.10 per capita.

Severance Tax Less

The steady decrease in the per capita apportionment has been attributed by state officials to the decrease in severance tax resulting from decreased oil production in the Arkansas fields.

For the school year, 1927-28, the severance tax yielded $794,678 for the common school fund, while in 1928-29 the tax yielded only $547,570 for the school fund, a decrease of $247,108.

The total amount apportioned in September, 1928, was $2,466,899. The treasurer's records Saturday showed a balance of $2,261,680 in the common school fund, but it was said that probably $100,000 or more will be paid into the fund from severance tax, cigar and cigarette tax and other sources, before the apportionment is made Tuesday.

Officials of the Department of Education would not attempt to estimate the probable per capita apportionment, but unofficial estimates based on available figures indicated that it probably will be around $3.70 to $3.80.

Nashville Newspaper Man Sunday Visitor In Hope

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ferguson and son, and Mrs. Adams, of that city, were visitors in Hope Sunday afternoon, coming down for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Roland Patterson, Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Ferguson being related.

While in town, as is customary with the fraternity, Mr. Patterson dropped around for a short visit with Star and had plenty to say about the virtues of all of Southwest Arkansas and of Nashville in particular.

Accidents Take Heavy Life Toll

Three Dead and Many Hurt Is Week-End Record at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Sept. 16. (AP)—Three persons lost their lives, several were in hospitals seriously injured and a dozen others were nursing hurts and injuries of automobile accidents in and about Memphis over the week end.

Jos. H. Martin, 53, and Lennie Rumpus, 19, died late last night as the result of injuries received in two accidents. John Love, negro, died early today as the result of injuries received when struck by an automobile owned by an undertaking company.

Young Bumpus was riding a bicycle when struck by a car driven by Mrs. Wm. Webb. He was not identified until his parents, several hours later, heard a radio description broadcast.

Near Piggott, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Doyle were returning home from St. Louis when a span of mules darted in front of their car. The car overturned, injuring Mrs. Doyle who was brought to a hospital here.

The Farm Board Cuts A Melon

Looks like the Federal Farm Board is cutting a melon for the farmers already. The 140-pound melon was presented to Alexander Legge, chairman of the board, by the Hope, Arkansas, Chamber of Commerce, the presentation being made by Senator Joe T. Robinson and Congressman Tillman B. Parks in Washington last week. The giant specimen was raised in the district which Mr. Parks represents.

Merchants Report Lively Saturday

Fall Business Opening Gives Promise of Lively Winter Trade.

Business men over the city report Saturday as being one of the best days, commercially, that they have enjoyed for some time and all look upon it as an omen of lively business through the fall and winter months.

"Business interests here are now beginning to realize just what diversified farming and the cheese plant mean to the community as a whole," R. M. Patterson, of Patterson's Department store, said today. "Heretofore cotton has been our great crop, and when the marketing season was on we enjoyed a good business."

"Nowadays, I notice more and more farmers are going in for a small garden for marketing purposes, taking extra care of the melon crop—and adding a few more cows and chickens. This means a pay-day nearly every time they come to town instead of once a year and there's an undertone of prosperous content easily readable among those who are taking advantage of the opportunity to convert milk and their many farm products into cash."

"Sure, cotton is a staple crop and always will be here, but it won't be the only crop and next year will see many more farmers profiting by the experience of their neighbors who draw a pay check every month from the local cheese plant."

Swiss Edelweiss Doomed By Ravages of Tourists

GENEVA, Sept. 16. Edelweiss, the famous Swiss mountain flower, is threatened with extinction, due chiefly to the ravages of tourists.

Several Alpine regions where the plant formerly flourished have reported that it is now very rare. Edelweiss does not spread rapidly even under normal conditions.

A Bavarian botanist, estimated recently that in a certain mountain area there were 26,000 roots of edelweiss in 1920. At the end of 1928, he said, only 600 remained.

Kept In Jail 21 Days; Finds 'Twas A Mistake

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The state of Illinois, the county of Cook, the city of Chicago, or whoever it is who, theoretically, is responsible for arresting people, wishes to apologize to Edwin Zastro, 17, for keeping him in jail 21 days.

There was, it seems, a mistake. Zastro was arrested for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Bruno Bodna was the complaining witness. Yesterday Zastro was brought into Judge Max Luster's court and Judge Luster asked him what he was in jail for.

"That," said Zastro, "is what I'd like to find out."

The clerk of the court spoke. "I remember the case," he said. "Bodna took the automobile number of the drunk driver and the number was the one issued to Zastro. It later developed that Bodna made a mistake in putting down the number and it wasn't Zastro at all."

Everyone was sorry about it, young Zastro in particular.

Hope Resident In Wreck On L. & A.

Only Slightly Injured As Mail Car Derailed In Louisiana.

S. D. Holladay, mail clerk on the L. & A., running out of Hope, mixed up an L. & A. passenger train crash near Anacola, La., Saturday morning, escaping with a bare-winded arm and shoulder and feeling himself lucky at that.

The train, No. 4 from New Orleans to Hope, was derailed when leaving Angola, the engine and tender leaving the track and plunging down an embankment. The engineer, Mr. Knight, one of the oldest on the road in point of service, was injured perhaps fatally.

None of the passenger coaches were derailed, thought the news "butch" and a number of passengers were severely bruised and shaken in the sudden stopping of the train.

Construction Body Holds First Meet

Will Call for Bids On Hospital and for T-B Sanitarium

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 16. (AP)—The construction commission recently appointed by Governor Parrell at its first meeting today organized and took definite steps toward the construction of the state hospital for nervous diseases and enlarging the tuberculosis sanitarium at Booneville.

Judge Joseph Hill, of Fort Smith, was elected president and Com. Davison of DeWitt, chairman. The commission will meet again September 30.

In the meantime, architects will be consulted and a committee headed by Davis will inquire into the money available for the work and make plans for the issuance of the sale of $350,000 in bonds to finance the building program.

Sewer Gas Blast Takes Human Life

Abnormally High Tide In River Is Cause of Explosion

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 16. (AP)—Fifteen persons were hurt, 11 probably fatally in explosion and fire originating in a sewer and water district today.

Two men and two women employed at a book store owned by Wm. S. Geenan were missing several hours after the blast and firemen were searching the ruins for the bodies.

The fronts of buildings were blown out and streets in the vicinity of the explosion were littered with debris.

The explosion is believed to have originated from the same cause as the blast to August, 1928, when an abnormally high tide in the Hudson river backed water up into the sewer mains and the gas formed resulted in an explosion.

Enrollment Shows Slight Increase Over Last Year

Scholastic Year Off To Gratifying Start Say Faculty

ATTENDANCE GROWS

Total Enrollment of 1494 Announced As First Day Closes

Hope schools opened today for the current school year, enrollment showing an increase in the white schools and slight decrease in the negro schools, which, however, it is believed will be made good a little later in the season.

Senior high enrolled 238. Junior high 185. Gileshy 274. Brookwood 214 and Garland primary 73, a total of 985 white, while the Shover street school showed 419, with 90 registered at the Rosenwald school.

The enrollment in the white schools this year is above that of last year, while the negro school falls slightly below. Superintendent Paisley is more than pleased with the first day's showing and is optimistic for the best school year the city has known.

Couple Separated In Air Reunited Soon After

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 16.—A couple, separated in the clouds, was later reunited at the airport here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Fisher, Los Angeles, Calif., were flying over this city when their plane was caught in storm. Fisher instructed his wife to make her first parachute jump. She climbed to the wing and was blown into space by the wind. The chute opened. Fisher landed the ship in a field and the couple met later at the airport.

Oldest Savings Account In U. S. Discovered

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Sidney R. Smith, local banker, claims to have the oldest savings account in the United States. The account was started by one Catherine Andrews at the Provident Institution for Savings on October 15, 817. Later she transferred it to Olivia H. Grandprie, who, in turn, transferred it to John Reed in 1861. It was from the executors of the Reed estate that Smith obtained the account, now nearly 112 years old.

Maine Ferry Still Runs After 100 Years of Use

BUCKSPORT, Me., Sept. 16.—Originally chartered when the State of Maine was part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Bucksport ferry still runs after 100 years of use.

There are none of your modern streamline effects on this old barge which was built less for speed than service. Service is obtained by blowing a foghorn which tells the drowsy skipper that someone is in the mood for a ferry ride.

Ohioan Has Two Unusual Philatelic Collections

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 16.—Two of the most remarkable philatelic collections in the country are the property of C. A. Vowinkel of this city.

One of them, said to be the largest of its kind in the United States, is composed of more than 2900 envelopes with the different styles of postmarks used in Ohio between 1800 and 1890.

The other, which won an award at a recent exhibition of the Pittsburg Philatelic Society, is a collection of Ohio letters, posted between 1800 and 1855, before stamps came into general use. The letters were folded and sealed to form their own envelopes. After the postmark was affixed the addressee was designated with a handstamp.

Missouri Pacific Magazine Carries Festival Publicity

One of the cleanest, cleverest bits of publicity given Hope's 4th annual Melon Festival is that contained in the current issue of the Missouri Pacific magazine, just out.

The story is comprehensive, well-written, covering every phase of the big event. The illustrations used are all original, different from anything thus far appearing.

State Releases Alleged "Reds"

Charges His Texas Mail Order Bride Dips Snuff, Fights

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 16.—(AP)—There are letters you write to get married, then there are letters that lead to divorce. The former Elizabeth Hopkins of Port Arthur, Texas, "white, clean, healthy and 20," has written both, her husband, Victor Von Gerhard, said in his suit filed here.

The couple started a correspondence after he read an advertisement in a magazine in which Miss Hopkins said she was lonely. Their letters led to the altar, but later the husband found his wife did not quite measure up to her description of herself. She used snuff, for one thing, he said, and another thing, she treated him rough. So they separated.

Now Gerhard said he received another letter from his wife in which she threatened to come back and do him "bodily harm."

That was the letter that led also he wanted an injunction to also he wanted an injunction to keep her from carrying out her threat. The couple was married in 1926.

Textile Showing Drawing Entries

Believed This Department Will Be One of Fair's Attractions.

Despite the many wonderful exhibits of canning and baking certain to be there, visitors to the annual Southwest Arkansas Fair next week will find that sewing still remains the highest of women's art, according to Mrs. W. P. Agee, superintendent of the textile department.

Fancy work, because of its decorative value will be given the most prominent display. Styles change with the years and women will find much that is new in the splendid display of fancy work to be seen in the textile department. Embroidery, tatting, crocheting, knitting, etc., will be presented from many new angles and much will be learned by any visitor who studies them.

The more practical and common types sewing will probably be exhibited in the greatest number and these will include such articles as handkerchiefs, towels, bedroom linen, aprons and women's and children's garments of various kinds. The exhibit will also include various kinds of rugs, bed spreads and quilts. Many articles valued as antiques will also be seen in this department.

Generous prizes have been set aside for the winning entries and Mrs. Agee is making every effort possible to make the textile department the most attractive department at the fair this year. She is anxious that the women and girls of Hope and Southwest Arkansas enter their textiles in "this department and show fair visitors one of the most attractive exhibits ever seen at a fair in this section of the state."

Everyone making an entry in the textile department is urged to bring it to the exhibit as early as possible next Monday.

Brookwood P. T. A. To Hold First Meeting

The Brookwood P. T. A. has its first meeting of the year at the school building Wednesday, September 18, and all members are urged to be present as well as prospective members.

All mothers who have children entering Brookwood this term are especially invited to attend this meeting and help to plan the year's work.

The program is in the competent hands of Miss Mabel Ethridge and promises to be intensely interesting and instructive as well as entertaining. There will be special music and readings.

The special business of the evening will be concerning the work at the Fair. It is desired that every mother have a voice and hand in putting Brookwood over in P. T. A. work this year.

Eight Held Under Guard Released Without A Trial

State Admits It Is Unable To Secure Evidence On Which To Hold

INVESTIGATION ON

Judge Shaw Continues Inquiry Into Communistic Activities

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Charges to overthrow the state government, proffered last week against eight textile union workers and communists, were nolle prossed when they appeared in City Recorder's court today for a preliminary hearing.

City Solicitor Oliver Littler when court convened this morning told City Recorder E. M. Currie that the warrants were withdrawn. M. B. Justice, attorney who had been retained to assist in the prosecution, told the court that the state had been unable to secure the necessary evidence.

Seven of the men held were arrested were picked up at a rooming house here last Thursday night and a quantity of guns and ammunition seized. The eighth man was arrested several hours later.

No Charges Filed

At the time of the arrest, no charges were filed against them, and Judge Shaw, investigating mob men unless charges were preferred, had threatened to release red at a specified time. Just a few minutes before the time limit expired the charges of conspiracy were filed.

Waggoner Hearing On Arrival of Indictment

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 16.—A hearing on the order to remove C. D. Waggoner, Telluride bank president to New York for trial, will not be held until after the arrival here of the indictment against the banker, A. D. Walton, United States attorney and S. D. Crump of Denver, one of Waggoner's attorneys, announced Sunday night after a conference.

Rural New Yorker Blames Zeppelin for Big Drought

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The Graf Zeppelin and a belief that the Gulf stream is changing its course stand out in a list of carries for the recent drought, the worst in New York state in 75 years, in the popular mind, according to Gustave S. Lindgren, government weather forecaster here.

"That big Zeppelin is the cause for this; it soaked up all the moisture," complained one rural voice over the telephone when the forecaster was unable to promise rain.

Even if the Gulf stream disappeared altogether it would affect climate in this section of the country but little, Lindgren said, as prevailing winds are from the west and weather more influenced by the Pacific ocean than the Atlantic.

Stock Sharper Is Hollywood Nemesis

Has Long List of Actors and Actresses On Hand In Bucket Shop Deal

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 16.—(AP)—An alleged stock market bucket shop in which many noted film stars were victimized is being investigated here today by authorities.

The shop proprietor, Herbert R. Jackson, is said to have fraudulently victimized a number of movie stars, is missing, his luxurious office and palatial home, the latter in the Beverly Hills district, being empty.

Deputy district attorney David Clark began an examination of the mission man's affairs, and said he believed the missing man had secured more than $100,000 in orders for stocks for which he had made no return. The orders were taken but no delivery ever made.

The Targedy of Telluride, Col.

THE newspapers are still telling about Charles Delos Waggoner, the small-town banker who went to New York and frisked the financial giants of half a million dollars.

Waggoner, who is president of the Bank of Telluride, at Telluride, Col., said:

"I did it to save my depositors. Those Eastern fellows owed it to us. They came out to Telluride with their mining mergers, and closed down the Telluride gold mines in order to help their properties somewhere else. They were ruining Telluride."

Waggoner was detailing to reporters one of the thrilling chapters of America's dramatic history. And because there was very evident sincerity in his manner, it marked his case as one of that long line of conflicts between invested capital and the community which industrial operations have built up.

If you want to know how Waggoner felt, just consider the case of Murfreesboro and its diamond mine, right here in Arkansas. A few years ago the tax assessment on the Arkansas Diamond Mining corporation was raised, after the diamond mill had been shut down, and a court hearing followed. It was alleged by the citizens around Murfreesboro that their diamond field (Pike county) had been sold out to British South African diamond interests, and the mill closed down in order to protect the market on diamonds.

This was denied by New York bankers, and Little Rock business men intimately concerned with the Pike county development. They said that unfamiliarity with diamond mining methods had led to the installation of the wrong kind of machinery in this country, and after so heavy an investment they were compelled to wait for a time.

Out in Telluride, Colorado, this man Waggoner says all justice is on the side of his little bank and the depositors who entrusted their money to him. It is being freely speculated all over the United States what an American jury will do to him.

This is the supreme tragedy of a rich and powerful nation—a once-thriving little city mowed down by industrial misfortune. But the morality of the case is clear. Waggoner stole, and whatever his attempt at justification in the eyes of the folks back home, it must be remembered that both Waggoner and the business men of Telluride invested of their own free will in the future of their city. Had it "boomed," they would have been permanently rich. They had that prospect of gain, with all its attendant risks.

Our Newest Transportation

LAST year, motor vehicles in this country were driven something over 96,000,000,000 miles. This estimate is based on the gasoline consumed. There were, during those twelve months, over 27,000 fatalities resulting from collisions and grade-crossing accidents of motor vehicles.

During the first six months of 1929, airplanes operating over regularly scheduled lines have flown over 9,000,000 miles—as much as the total airplane mileage of 1928—and before the year is over, at the present growth, will have flown 25,000,000 miles.

It is safe to predict that, at the normal rate of air accidents on regular schedules—if there be such a normality as yet—the mileage per fatality will be almost as great as the 3,600,000 miles per automobile fatality.

During three years of operation by the postoffice department, from 1925 to 1927, mail planes flew considerably more than 6,000,000 miles. These planes carried passengers—some as a regular practice, and others for short periods as a matter of experiment. During these three years, three pilots were killed and no passengers—an average of more than 2,000,000 miles per casualty.

Air travel is constantly increasing in safety, where it is conducted on regular schedule and operated as a commercial business. Less than 6 per cent of the passenger casualties last year occurred in scheduled flying. Nearly 82 per cent, on the other hand, arose from "miscellaneous flying." Commercial lines are daily showing a greater margin of safety to their patrons. Many such lines fly tri-motored ships. These craft will fly with any two of their motors in order; and it has been demonstrated that it is possible to fly them with only one.

The growth and development of aviation is of the utmost importance to the South. Aviation was born in the South, and the centers of Army aviation are located here. The South's climate, its topography, are admirably adapted to the needs of flying. Many of the country's finest planes are manufactured here. Many more, in the course of years, will be produced south of Mason and Dixon's Line. It is but the national trend of all industry; and it is even more logical for an industry that finds here so many of the factors necessary to its proper development.—Holland's Magazine.

One Swallow Ends a Summer!

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Not that it is unlikely to do any untold harm, but in these days of huge export figures and American mass production the average cigar smoker is likely to make the mistake of supposing that the rest of the world reaches for a toasted American cigar instead of a sweet, or walks a mile for another American brand or is satisfied by still another.

As it happens, this isn't true and there are several reasons. It is true that American cigars may be purchased in almost any country in the world—103 of them, to be exact—and that in many places our cigars are regarded as luxuries because of the high prices they command in such places. But there is generally a stiff tariff abroad on cigars which puts them well beyond the customary reach of the average smoker. Quite a few countries have government cigar monopolies which discourage imports. And a third—and at least equally important—factor is that other peoples have distinctly different tastes in cigars.

Your correspondent learns these things and various other facts about to be presented from Mr. Benjamin D. Hill, the tobacco expert of the Department of Commerce, who spends half his time traveling abroad to study the tobacco habits and practices of other lands. Mr. Hill's business is to promote the cigar and tobacco industry. Mr. Hill tops off our manufacturers to the tastes of the rest of the world and passes along information about opportunities for exports which he gets from our commercial attaches.

Introduced American cigars in-in introduced American cigars in- to Poland, Austria, Rumania and the Free State of Danzig. Mr. Hill comes from Tennessee and was born and brought up in the tobacco business in Tennessee and Kentucky. After many years in the manufacturing and export business (he was operating the warehouses of the Dark Tobacco Pool for 72,000 co-operative-minded farmers when Mr. Hoover grabbed him for the Commerce Department in 1925).

In the first six months of the year we sold five billion cigars abroad, but poor old benighted China took 64 per cent of them. Incidentally, we make some brands for China and other countries which are not sold over here—ever. Some of China's American favorites are the Ruby Queen, the Pinhead and the Pirate, sold cheap in packages of ten.

The taste of continental Europe is for Macedonian and other Balkan tobaccos. England prefers straight Virginia tobacco in her cigars, though this is altogether too strong for American throats. The trend in America, found in most of our popular cigars, is toward a blend of Burely, Maryland and North Carolina tobacco with a touch of Greek or Turkish.

There's no accounting for tastes in tobacco, Mr. Hill admits, but climate has something to do with it. They can stand that straight Virginia in the wet British climate and in this hemisphere the farther south one goes the stronger the natives want their tobacco. Latin American smokers strong dark tobacco in their cigars.

Every country has a limitation on the number of cigars a tourist can carry along with him. Thus, one is likely to have to pay $1.50 for a single package of Chesterfields, Lucky Strikes or Camels in Germany, which is probably the highest price in the world.

Your correspondent remembers the anguish of paying 75 cents for a 15-cent package of cigars at a kiosk in Guayaquil, Ecuador. The only anguish more excruciating would have been to smoke some more of the brands favored by Ecuadorians and Ecuadorians.

In some countries where the purchasing power is pretty low you can buy cigars at so much apiece. Sales of single cigars are frequent in Warsaw and in the Malay states, for instance.

Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL - POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Helen Page feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being in love with her handsome guardian, Leonard Brent. But he represents all that she knows of home and family and she has promised to clear up the mystery of her birth after she graduates.

However, a chance meeting with a dying beggar causes Brent to change all his plans regarding Helen's future. Before the man dies he tells Brent that his name is Charles Owens Nellin; that his wife is dead and that he has hidden a daughter from a wealthy grandfather, Cyril K. Cunningham, of Yonkers. Possessing at least a newspaper man searching for story material, Brent secures facts and evidence with all his plans.

When Helen graduates she reminds her guardian that he has promised to tell her about her parents, and is amazed when he tells her that she is the heiress of Cyril K. Cunningham. He shows her a locket which he had secured from the dying Nellin and tells her the picture is of her mother, Evangeline Cunningham. In accordance with a promise made to her parents, he tells her that he must now take her to her grandfather. Obunkindness to her mother." It was a master stroke. Plausibility did not admit of a man attempting to foster an imposter upon another man, and at the same time plainly make his own effort at difficult as possible. Mr. Cunningham was puzzled and a trifle disarmed.

"As you say," he snapped at Brent, "the matter rests between me and . . . he turned to Helen, "this young lady."

"Your granddaughter," Brent answered flatly. He felt well satisfied with the progress he had made. He was convinced that Mr. Cunningham would not turn Helen away once he accepted the belief that she was indeed his granddaughter. And the readiest way to make him believe was to rob the situation of all appearance of an attempt to take advantage of it. Brent had reasoned.

"Helen would be but a pawn. But now she was speaking for herself. "I didn't want to come here, Mr. Cunningham," she said swiftly. "I've grown up under Mr. Brent's care and I want to remain with him. After he told me about my father and mother I said I never wanted to see you, but mother wanted me to come and . . .

"Here you are," Mr. Cunningham retorted dryly. "And now take her to her grandfather. Obviously, "Well, well," he said, "we shall see. But you do not realize that there are reasons why I must sift this matter to the bottom, I hope. If there's any truth in your story I must know it. You understand that," he appended speaking to Brent.

Brent inclined his head. "Certainly," he said. "But we care so little about convincing you, Mr. Cunningham, that we have brought no proof."

"No proof, eh?" Mr. Cunningham repeated, and who shall say that there was not a note of disappointment in his voice?

"Except your daughter's photograph in a locket that Charles Nellin gave me," Brent added easily. "Let me see it!" The scrawny hand extended eagerly, impatiently.

Brent took the locket that he had stolen from Nellin from his pocket and handed it over to Mr. Cunningham.

The latter held it close, examining it with the avidity of a starving man searching refuse for a crumb of food. They heard him mutter something that they could not understand.

Then he opened the locket and a real cry was wrung from his lips.

Long he bent over the pictured face and soon the tears were streaming unchecked down his furrowed cheeks. Brent secretly exulted over the sight but Helen turned her face away.

He lifted his head at last. "It is my daughter," he said chokingly. "It is Evangeline. This is the locket I gave her mother. Her name was Evangeline too."

Brent nodded. "Under your daughter's picture you will find another," he said.

Eagerly the old man sought to remove his daughter Evangeline's likeness, but his hands trembled so his effort was fruitless. Helen sprang forward to help him, no longer able to control her desire to look at her mother's photograph. "Let me see it, please," she begged. Mr. Cunningham reluctantly allowed her to take it from him.

A moment Helen stared at it, feeding her hunger for sight of the maternal face she had never known. Then Mr. Cunningham asked her to take Evangeline's picture out of the locket and Helen obeyed him.

As Brent had said, there was another beneath it. It was Evangeline's mother, Mr. Cunningham told them. He was deeply moved, forgetful of his suspicions and doubts for the moment.

"There was another locket," he said. "I don't know what became of it; probably Evangeline took it with her. It contained my picture."

"Of course," Helen breathed softly, "she would want it."

Mr. Cunningham smiled faintly. "You think she did not hate me?"

"I'm sure of it," Helen cried. "How could she hate her father?"

Leonard! Helen broke in, furious with anger and loyalty toward Brent. "How could he have done what you say? Would he have waited 15 years? I've begged him many times to tell me who my mother and father were, and he wouldn't. Does that look as if he wanted anything from you?"

"My dear young lady," Mr. Cunningham said with a caustic accent, "the fact remains that you are here. And if you are my granddaughter I wish you to remain."

"And have you think I want to inherit your money?" Helen cried. "Leonard has all the money we need."

Mr. Cunningham was a bit nonplussed at this information. Somehow it had not occurred to him that Brent might be a man of wealth.

"Helen exaggerates," Brent smiled, "but it is true that we do not require assistance from you, Mr. Cunningham. I expect to sail for Europe shortly and take Helen with me. This is really a farewell visit."

Mr. Cunningham was caught unprepared. "You can't leave until this thing is settled," he objected instantly.

"I shall be most happy to assist in settling it," Brent offered, "if Helen wishes it. But remember, I told you I hoped she would not be intrigued with the idea of becoming your heir."

"I am not," Helen vouchsafed. Mr. Cunningham's frown deepened. "Permit me to suggest," he said, "that you are not keeping the spirit of your promise to my daughter. I hardly believe she wanted Helen to come to me merely to tell me that she does not wish to inherit my money. Am I not right?" He appealed directly to Helen.

Leonard said that Mother did hope you would do something for me," she confessed reluctantly. "But I don't need your help now. Leonard has taken very good care of me."

"But your mother undoubtedly wished you to win my forgiveness for her," Mr. Cunningham tempted. "And I can do a great deal for you—I'm a very rich man, my dear. My money belongs to Evangeline's daughter. You have no right to refuse it. I shall ask you to give me your word to return here at three o'clock this afternoon at which time you will meet my attorney and tell your story to him."

Helen hesitated until Brent spoke for her. "We will do as you ask," he said curtly. "I should dislike very much to leave any doubt in your mind."

"There will be no doubt in my mind," Mr. Cunningham returned shortly. "If I accept this girl as my granddaughter it will be only after a thorough investigation, which, warn you, will make you both criminally liable if you have tried to cheat me."

because your hens have stopped, don't you fail to send in your record. By close culling and good feeding you can keep your production up to standard.

Build a House for your Hens . . . The money you make from upon winter production. Winter production, to a great extent, often depends upon your poultry that will keep your hens dry and warm is going to help you a lot in getting good winter production. Your Hens May Stop but don't you Stop!

Some of your hens have already stopped laying. Probably you have culled them, if you haven't, you should. But, just tion.

should be dry durable and supply plenty of fresh air to keep the birds cool in summer.

The square 20' by 20' shed-roof house is economical to construct and is adapted to Arkansas conditions. This house should be 9 feet high in front and 4 feet and 6 inches in the back. The floor of this house should be constructed out of concrete and gravel drained underneath with gravel. The frame work should be made out of 2" by 4" material. The 2"x4" sills should be bolted to the concrete foundation. Three siding should be made of dressed weather boarding. The roof should be sheathed solid with ship-lap and covered with a good grade of roofing paper. A 4"x14" front of the house 3 feet from the end and 4 feet from the floor. Two windows should be put in on the rear side of the house underneath dropping board for light and ventilation.

A dropping board should be put in a horizontal position about 30 inches above the floor. This dropping board should fit tight against the rear wall of the house, be 60 inches wide, and extend the entire length of the house. Four rows of perch poles should be put in about six inches above the dropping board. These poles should be placed about 14 inches apart being 9 inches from the rear wall.

Twenty nests 12 inches by 14 in width and length and 12 inches high are necessary in this size house. They can be placed under the dropping board or on the wall of the end of the house. The water and mash containers should be high enough off the floor so the hens will not scratch litter in them and should be constructed so the hens cannot get in them. Allow four square feet of floor space per hen. Allow one foot of hopper space for every ten hens.

This 20 by 30 feet house has a capacity of 100 hens of the dual purpose breeds of 126 of the Leg-horn breeds.

For details of construction, ask your County or Home Demonstration Agent for Extension Circular No. 254, "Farm Poultry Houses and Equipment."

They Really Wore 'Em Long Ago

This is how the fopper of the "gay nineties" would look in comparison with the modern girl of 1929. California business women, when they met in annual convention at Pasadena, adopted the garb of the "gay nineties" for their meeting—and here are Miss Holly Halsted, the modern miss, examining the bustle costume of Miss Mabel Smith. Yes, they used to wear those things—years ago!

Dean of Pilots; In Harness 35 Years Has Won Seven Pennants

By JOHN H. REITINGER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Hal Tennyson lived in the days of Connie Mack, he could have applied the words of his old brook "for men may come and men may go, but I go on forever," to the tall and slender manager.

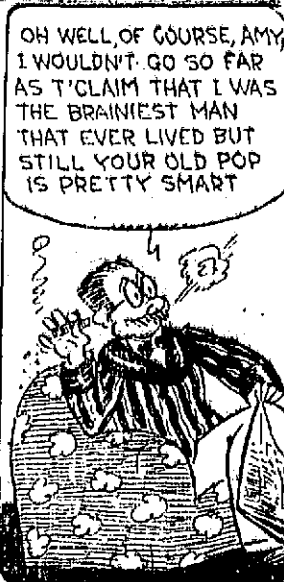

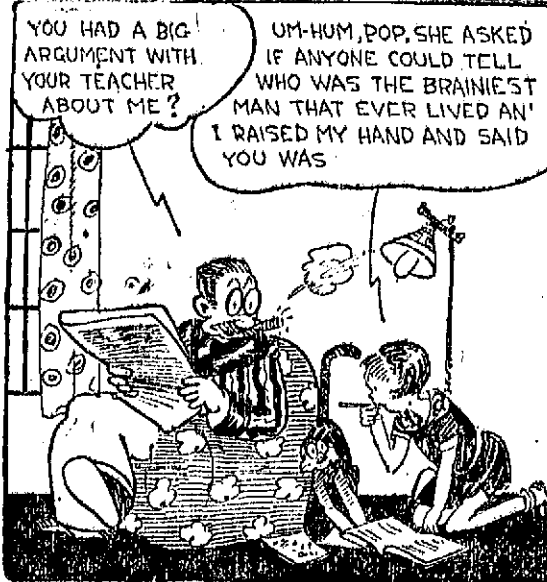

No manager in baseball has been in the directing head of a team as long as the Philadelphia Phillies, nor has any manager been as guiding genius of one team as this master of the national game.

Only a little more than three years short of the Biblical three score years and ten, this veteran of the ball and bat keeps everlastingly at it, developing finished ball players from the raw material worrying other managers, and winning pennants.

Connie Mack, whose name was whittled down from Cornelius McGillicuddy by the hard working sports writers in the dawn of modern baseball, will be 67 years old in December. He has no thought of quitting the game. Every once in a while he is asked when he is going to retire and replies he has no present intention of so doing. Recently he said he would leave the bench only when his health fails and there is no present sign of such an unfortunate happening.

MOM'N POP

Pop Solves a Tough Problem

By Cowan

The master builder of ball teams has been managing players since 1894, a stretch of thirty-five years. In the last 20 years he has piloted seven teams to the American league championship and three world's series titles. His teams have been the runner up six times.

It is his greatest ambition to again win the baseball classic. He has the best aggregation of ball players he has handled in 15 years, and while he does not boast that it is a world beater there is reason to believe that he thinks he will again sit on top of the baseball world.

Connie Mack, as is well known in baseball, is a different type of manager than the general run of team directors.

He never "bawls" out a player unnecessarily in the presence of others for some misplay, but manages to convey his displeasure without wounding the feelings of the man. His voice is never heard on the field, nor is he seen in open protest against the judgment of the umpires. His teams have always borne good reputations for gentlemanly conduct on the field.

ball team. He is absolute dictator of his players' conduct on the diamond and he rules the roster. When Mack says they must go, they go. Aleck, in recent years, has been the most notable of the players who had to go. Mack was criticized roundly when Aleck proved the deciding factor in a world series with the Yankees.

In this respect, you have to hand it to Bill Wrigley. He has stood by Mack to the very limit, even to the extent of opening his purse strings and offering him a million for new material.

The Responsibility

Every man on the Cub team knows that they have only one man to answer to—McCarthy. Further, they know that he will defend them while they play ball. When they quit; so does Mack. To a certain degree they do their own ball playing, while it's within the limits of reason.

After losing four out of five to Pittsburgh recently, the Cubs came home for Sunday and Labor Day games with the Cardinals. More than 125,000 people crowded Wrigley field on those two days.

Hockey in the West

Further development of collegiate hockey by the formation of a middle-western league is in prospect. Several Big Ten universities, including Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, have hockey teams. Michigan has completed an artificial rink in Ann Arbor. Wisconsin and Minnesota book games with one another and play Marquette and other non-conference schools.

Tug Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern, says the Evanston school is seriously considering a hockey team this winter, hoping to book games at the Chicago Stadium which is said to have the largest indoor ice surface in America.

Major John Griffiths, Big Ten athletic commissioner, is helping in every way possible the movement to form a middle-western league, taking in members and non-members of the conference.

Bobby on the Links

In certain quarters the question was raised, before the national amateur at Pebble Beach, whether or not Bobby Jones' clubs would retain their magic on a links as well as they have been functioning on the inland courses. The answer seems to be yes, they do.

Hope Athlete After Porker Regular Job

Jack Robison Seeking To Find Berth In Varsity Line.

DAYTONVILLE, Sept. 16.—The first week of football practice at the University of Arkansas revealed the startling fact that several of the 1929 Razorback players are not at all certain that they will be in the starting line-up at the end of the season.

Eight members of last year's freshman squad and two of last season's reserves are the players who have put the veteran on the anxious seat. They are Robison, Chambers, Kyle, Secrest, Ledbetter, Wiseman, Jackson and Phillips of last year's frosh squad, and Varnell and Upmooor of the reserves. Several newcomers on the squad of 40 insist that they, too, will be in on the final distribution of jobs and they may be right.

All of which is to say that there is the keenest kind of competition for nearly every position on the 1929 Arkansas eleven.

Such a condition under former coach Francis "Gloomy Amos" Schmidt would only have deepened Schmidt's gloom. The present Razorback head coach "Smiling Tommy" Thomsen, however, is frank to admit that things look risky and that he likes the aggressive and hustling spirit shown by his charges.

With Captain Geis a fixture at quarterback and with Jack Dale and Dick Miller doing everything good halfbacks should do, chief interest centers on the likely man to fill Beaver's vacant position at fullback. Beavers was named as the most valuable player in the Southwest Conference last fall, but his reputation doesn't mean a thing to four aspiring candidates for his job. "Ledbetter, Upmooor, Bradley and Butts are competing for fullback," said Coach Thomsen, "and the man who can hit the line and show some real blocking ability will get the job."

Another player who looks like a real find is Jack Robison of Hope. It will be difficult to keep this 185-lb. sophomore of the team. If he doesn't supplant Bucklew at center—an undreamed of thing a week ago—he will be found at guard. The general opinion is that Robison is "one sweet lineman."

Make Changes At State Paper Mill

Four Employees Leave Employment of International Paper Company.

CAMDEN, Sept. 16.—Four employees of the International Paper Company's $3,000,000 paper mill at Cullendale left the services of the company here today it was learned.

H. S. Galloway of Bastrop, La., has been selected agent to take charge of the mill and succeed J. H. Rester, who had been in charge since the plant first was established. Other employees of company who left were C. E. Carter, bookkeeper; W. F. Wooten, and F. D. Hein of the office personnel.

It first was reported the men had resigned, but one of them later said "there was no resigning to it, we were fired for failure to carry out orders which were not conveyed to us properly." None of the former employees would allow their names to be used in a statement.

CRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer

SIR THOMAS LIPTON, whose unflinching courage and sportsmanship has made him the greatest figure in yachting circles, is preparing for his fifth and last attempt to lift the America's cup.

When the venerable skipper crosses the Atlantic next summer, it will be at the helm of the finest and most meticulously wrought craft his inexhaustible bank roll and the ship building brains of his staff can produce.

Lipton has spent fortunes on yachts in four unsuccessful attempts to win the trophy, but his latest Shamrock bids fair to represent the largest outlay for this particular type of racing yacht in the history of the sport. Already the figures are said to be over $2,000,000.

The America's cup has been in the possession of the United States since 1851, when the speedy sloop America won it in a series of races off the Isle of Man. Sir Thomas entered the picture as a seeker of it in 1899. That year saw the first of his now famous Shamrocks go down defeated.

He came back in 1901, 1903 and 1920, but each time went back to Glasgow without the "bloomin' mug." These attempts cost Sir Thomas countless dollars, but never killed off his life-long ambition. This year Sir Thomas thinks he has better than an even chance.

"There is nothing I can think of that would give me greater satisfaction than to win the America's cup," said Sir Thomas Lipton. "My new challenger will not be of the freak type as was the Shamrock IV. She will be a vessel built on the best scientific racing lines and I am confident she will be the best sloop I ever have brought to this country."

A Manager Who Manages

Every year the big league pennant races produce one or more "miracle men," as they call the men who manage their teams into championships. It's going a little far to apply the term to Boss Joe McCarthy of the Cubs, but it must be said that McCarthy has done the best he could with the material he had.

There has been a great deal of criticism of Mac off and on all season in Chicago. Plenty of people complained that he was working his men too hard, using them up as fast as he knew how—sending them in, pitchers particularly, day after day while they lasted.

Joe, however, isn't the browbeating slave-driver all this might indicate. He is intensely human, even though he is boss in every sense of the word. His immediate objective is today's game. He tries to win that, and let tomorrow's take care of itself when the time comes. He is not the master-mind type, made famous by McGraw. He entertains no frills in the way of fancy theories.

His Own Assistant

Play baseball now, win today, even if it takes ten pitchers, five catchers and half a dozen pinch hitters to do it. Win today if William Wrigley himself has to go up there and wave a club. Tomorrow? Well, maybe we'll win tomorrow, too.

McCarthy is at once his own board of strategy, his own assistant, his own boss. He runs that

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

During the trip to Pebble Beach, George Von Elm and his pretty wife, "Toots," were in a Pullman compartment next to one occupied by a guard and a high class convict. The convict got hold of one of the guard's guns and the two of them shot it out, man fashion, at a distance of 15 inches—George said he thought somebody was trying to shoot his way into his compartment, so he grabbed a niblick—it wouldn't have been the first time George has fought with that old niblick—in fact he beat Bobby Jones with it a couple of years ago, on the fairways. Cyril Tolley said at Pebble Beach that when he played with certain people his game went to pieces. One of these people is his friend, Eustace Storey—Tolley says that "privately, however, he's a lovely chap, you know."

New Promoter Takes First Fall Out of Fight Game Here This Week

Tex Leavelle, Boxer, Promises Fans Some High-Class Bouts During Fall and Winter Months—Succeeds Robins As Promoter

"Tex Leavelle, somewhat known around these diggins as a light-heavy boxer with a fair chance to climb up the ladder as he gains experience, has taken over the job of promoting bouts here, succeeding Leo Robins who stepped out last Thursday night in order to devote all his time to his cotton buying business. And the new man has slated his first card for next Thursday night, going on himself with Herschel Dean, a Louisiana product who is said to sling a wicked pair of mitts.

Dean and Leavelle met once before, on Dean's own stamping ground, where the 10-round go was declared a draw. Fans who saw it say it was full of action, Leavelle coming out of his customary defensive attitude with a flash of fighting speed that anywhere else would have won him the decision.

That Leavelle is smart as a promoter—or else had a plenty good hunch—is evidenced by the fact that his first effort was to match "Preacher Walker and 'The Black Peril.' " "Preacher" being non est for the time being, account of a difference of opinion with the law, it is not known whether he will be here or not—but anyhow Tex had the hunch and that's a promising sign.

The card stacks up as an entertaining one and it has the virtue of this guarantee, made by Leavelle: "If I can't give the fans what I promise then I can give their money back."

Leavelle has gotten in touch with the State Boxing Commission, preparatory to paying license and being regularly recognized and declares his intention of putting some of the best boys making this southwestern territory.

Jack Matlock will be staged at an early date, Leavelle says, he believing he his strings in a man who can take Matlock to a cleaning without going ten rounds to do it.

Chicago Was First City To Invent Modern Cop

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—A member of the police force is a "hobby" or a "copper," according to where you were born. But he is seldom a policeman except in the elegant form of daily speech.

It may surprise many to learn that the term copper is a Chicago invention, especially in these days when a "cop's" life is worth so little along the mid-western front. Readers of a new history of Chicago may find out the fact for themselves, though.

Lloyd Lewis and Henry Justin Smith tell of the origin of the word in "Chicago: The History of Its Reputation," just published by Harcourt, Brace and Company. The "cop" dates back to the fifties, when Chicago was young. But even in its youth Chicago was a hard-boiled village. One of its mayors at the time was John C. Haines, known as "Copper-stock" Haines because he played the stock market. His busy police were nicknamed by the Chicago citizens "coppers"—and soon after the whole country adopted the term in speaking of their guardians of the law.

HIS MORNING BAD TASTE DISAPPEARED

Man's Appetite Improved and Health Better As Result of Taking Black-Draught.

Lockhart, S. G.—"I could not eat heartily, and my rest at night was disturbed," says Mr. R. J. Black, of this city. I was troubled with the effects of gas pains, and I hardly had a comfortable day.

"All my ailments seemed to be the result of chronic constipation which caused my system to become filled with poison. I was getting worse all the time, but did not realize the cause.

"One day a friend suggested that I try Black-Draught. I had often seen it advertised, but I had never tried it. I began taking it right off, and no money could pay me for the improvement which came after I had taken it several weeks.

"I began to feel better. The bad taste which I had in my mouth every morning disappeared. My appetite improved, and I began to feel like a different person. I continued the medicine for several weeks, and since then I have felt fine. I am in better health now than I have been in years.

spiritual life. The Sabbath calls man back to a recognition of God. No nation endures that forgets God.

"A violation of the Sabbath is anything that tends to unnecessary secular labor, promotes a worldly spirit and self-indulgence, and tends to irreverence and disregard of God."

The Civil Sunday "The American Sunday," Dr. Bowen observed, "is a civil institution. All the states have laws relating to the day. The state does not recognize the religious character of the day, as such, but enforces its observance on the theory that one day of rest is necessary for the physical and moral well-being of its citizens.

"It thus happens that a seeking to safeguard the physical and moral welfare of the people the civil law is in harmony with the moral law of God. Any effort to nullify or break down those laws becomes an act of violence against the law of God and the law of the land.

"The popular demand for abolition or change does not necessarily mean that such demand is morally right or that civilization has reached a higher degree of culture or intelligence. The older civilizations went down at the height of their glory. There are thousands who want other laws abolished or changed but it does not mean that the change would be right or best.

The Moral Law "In the second place there is a moral law by which man's conduct should be regulated through all civil laws are removed. Man, as a free-moral agent, has the privilege of violating this moral law and responsibility if he chooses but it is there just the same.

"What motive determines our attitude toward the day? It is one of self-interest, indulgence, and disregard of the moral and civil law, or is it a desire to honor these? The person or business that puts self-interest, worldly indulgence, and disregard for law against the moral and civil law by which we should be guided has lifted his hand against the established law of God and of the land and as no right to impose a program of lawlessness upon the community.

"The method of procedure in seeking to promote such program is not always frank, open, and above board."

Insured buying

There's a way of insuring your buying against wasted money and unsatisfactory merchandise. And that insurance costs you not a penny. It is always paid up to date and in full force.

That insurance is the advertising here in your newspaper. Advertising products are standardized, perfected and carefully priced before they are even advertised.

Whether you are buying soap, clothing, shoes, toothpaste, food or electrical household appliances, the result is the same. You get reliable, economical merchandise whenever you buy by the advertisements.

Make up your insured shopping list in the comfort and quiet of your own home. Compare the merits of the products advertised. Study the way in which each is adapted to your needs.

You'll find advertising truthful, informing and interesting. That's the only sort that pays, you know.

Every dollar you spend on advertised merchandise is insured against waste.
